30 Day Challenge

1. This was my second favorite part. It was not necessarily the game I wanted to build, but it was the one I thought might be the most doable. I think I am mostly done with this one, maybe just another touch up here and there but the core game concept is there. And it works every time. Making this has inspired me to want to make other games. Like my other 2 ideas I had at the start of the semester. This game is good though because I think there is potential to build it into a good educational game that could be used in schools. So there is a real use for it. I will continue to build on it and see how it goes. I still have a lot to learn code wise and Chat GPT helped a lot. Coding is something I struggle with so I will have to keep practicing. There also wasn't a ton of integration from the other games. Basically I was going to use my scene as a background to this game. I still need to do that, but I wanted a complete game before getting TOO much into the aesthetics.
